AMBALA DIVISION.

DUJANA STATE.

THE State of Dujana comprises three detached areas of territory, amounting in all to about 100 square miles. The town of Dujana lies 37 miles due west of Delhi in the heart of the Rohtak District, but the Nahar Tahsil, to the south-west of that district, contains the bulk of the territory of the State. By the treaty of Anjangaon, signed in 1803, this portion of the old Delhi Empire passed to the British, but on the reversal of Lord Wellesley's forward policy the ceded territories between the British border and the Sikh States were parcelled out among military leaders who had done us good service. This was the origin of the States of Jhajjar and Bahadurgarh which have disappeared as well as of Dujana and Pataudi which survive.

The founder of the State was a Pathan, named Abdus Samad Khan, whose ancestors had come from Buner and settled near Jhajjar at the end of the 14th century. Abdus Samad Khan held a high command in the Marhatta Army which assisted Lord Lake in his campaign against Sindhia and ultimately joined Lord Lake's force, distinguishing himself at Bharatpur. As a reward for his services he received a grant of an extensive tract of country including Hariana and Hissar together with the title of Nawab. But the territory made over to him proved more than he could manage, and in 1809 he was obliged to resign the territory in Hariana, receiving in lieu thereof the villages of Dujana and Mehrana.

Dujana ranks nineteenth in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab, and the Chief holds on conditions that may briefly be described as fidelity to the British Government and military service to the extent of two hundred horse when required.

Nawab Muhammad Mumtaz Ali Khan, Bahadur, succeeded to the Chiefship in 1879. He died childless in 1908 and was succeeded by his cousin, the present Chief, Nawab Muhammad Khurshaid Ali Khan, Bahadur, whose son, Muhammad Iftikhar Ali Khan, born on 5th February 1910, is the heir-apparent. The Nawab is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

Muhammad Hanif Khan, Wazir; belongs to a good family of Lodhi Zai Pathans of Bara Basti, District Muzaffarnagar; son of Muhammad Ashraf Khan, who served in the British Army and was present at the siege of Delhi in 1857; formerly in Government service, retired on pension in 1903; received a grant of 5 squares of land on the Jhelum Canal; subsequently took service in the Dujana State and shortly afterwards became Wazir.

KALSIA STATE.

Kalsia, from which the State derives its name, is a Manjha village in the Kasur Tahsil of the Lahore District, in which the Chief still owns a small share. The State now consists of 20 separate enclaves and has a total area of 168 square miles. The founder of the Kalsia family was Sardar Gurbakhsh Singh, a prominent member of the Karora Singhia confederacy and a companion of the celebrated Sardar Baghel Singh of Chhalaundi. His son, Jodh Singh, succeeded Baghel Singh as head of the confederacy. He obtained possession of the tracts north of Ambala, which are included in the present State of Kalsia, besides much other territory which was afterwards lost. Jodh Singh considered himself the equal of the Phulkian Chiefs, and Raja Sahib Singh of Patiala was glad to give his daughter in marriage to his second son and thus secure the alliance of a most troublesome neighbour. Kalsia gave ready assistance to the British Government in both the Sikh wars, and did good service in the mutiny. It was one of the nine Cis-Sutlej States which were allowed to maintain their independence when the others were reduced after the second Sikh War to the status of jagirs. Sardar Lehna Singh, grandson of Sardar Jodh Singh, was granted a sanad in 1862, securing to him and his successors the privilege of adoption in the event of failure of natural heirs. Kalwa ranks sixteenth among the Native States of the Punjab. The late Chief Sardar Ranjit Singh succeeded his elder brother in 1886. He was invited to meet His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Delhi in 1905. Ruling powers were conferred on him in 1903.

The present Chief, Raja Ravisher Singh, succeeded on the death of his father in 1908. During his minority the State is managed by a Council consisting of a Sikh President and two members, one a Hindu and the other a Muhammadan. The Council is subject to the supervision of the Commissioner of the Ambala Division. The hereditary title of Raja was conferred upon the Chief on the 1st January 1916. He has been at the Aitchison College, Lahore, since 1913. The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

Sardar Jasmer Singh, of Chirak, District Ferozepore; the leading jagirdar in the State, his jagir being worth Rs. 7,606; is also a large landowner.

(1) Niamat-ullah; belongs to a respectable family, which has served the State for four generations; Vakil to Deputy Commissioner, Ambala, 1881 to 1908; member of the State Council of Regency, 1908; brother of Khan Bahadur Munshi Inayat-ullah, who was in the State's employment 49 years.

(2) Lala Murli Mal; an old servant of the State; was Vakil to the Commissioner and a Tahsildar; since appointed a member of the Council of Regency.

LOHARU STATE.

Loharu is a small State, 222 square miles in area, in the south-east corner of the Punjab in the political charge of the Commissioner of the Ambala Division. The Chief's family is descended from a Bokhara Mughal who took service with the Emperor Ahmad Shah and married the daughter of the Governor of Attock. His son, Ahmad Bakhsh Khan, entered the service of the Raja of Alwar, who employed him as agent to Lord Lake. In recognition of his services Lord Lake granted him a sanad conferring on him a perpetual jagir in the Gurgaon District, yielding three lakhs of revenue per annum. This grant, which was subject to the supply of 200 horsemen on demand and an exhibition of manifest zeal and attachment to the British Government, was confirmed by the Government of India. Ahmad Bakhsh Khan's son and successor was executed in 1835 for complicity in the murder of Mr. William Fraser, the Resident at Delhi, and part of the Loharu territory was confiscated. Loharu proper was continued to his two brothers; but owing to dissensions the younger was eventually compelled to leave the State. The branch of the family descended from him now receives allowances of Rs. 12,000 per annum from the Nawab of Loharu. The title of Nawab was revived in favour of Ala-ud-din Ahmad Khan, the father of the present Chief, by Earl Northbrook in 1874. A short time before his death he handed over the management of the State to his son, and himself retired to Delhi. Loharu ranks eighteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab.

The present Chief, Nawab Sir Amir-ud-din Ahmad Khan, Bahadur, K.C.I.E., was born on the 26th January 1860, and succeeded to the Chiefship in 1884. He was appointed an Additional Member of His Excellency the Governor-General's Council in 1895 and was made a K.C.I.E. in 1897. He was from October 1899 to October 1901 a member of the Punjab Legislative Council. The Nawab went to Basra on special duty under the Political Resident, in October 1915, but unfortunately had to return to India on account of ill-health. The Chief enjoys a salute of 9 guns, granted as a personal distinction on January 1st, 1903, and made permanent, for services connected with the war, on January 1st, 1918. He is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

(1) Nawabzada Mirza Aizz-ud-din Ahmad Khan, alias Azam Mirza; eldest surviving son of the Chief, and heir-apparent; born 27th December 1885; educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore; Financial Administrator of the State, 1907.

(2) Sahibzada Mirza Izaz-ud-din Ahmad Khan, alias Shahrukh Mirza; second surviving son of the Chief; born 25th February 1887; educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore; now serving as an E. A. C. in Baluchistan.

(3) Sahibzada Mirza Itizaz-ud-din Ahmad Khan, alias Humayun Mirza; third and youngest surviving son of the Chief; born 6th September 1899; being educated at the Mayo College, Ajmere.

(1) Mirza Abdul Alim Beg; Tahsildar and also acts as Motamid of the State. His grandfather, a Mughal, was maternal uncle of the grandfather of the Nawab and was an Amil or Nazim. His father was a Tahsildar in the State. The family has held office in the State for a century.

(2) Muhammad Hamid Ali Khan; grandson of Muhammad Hafiz-ullah Khan, who was Judicial Munsarim in the State and maternal uncle of the Nawab's mother; is in charge of the State Police.

PATAUDI STATE.

Pataudi is a small State, with an area of 52 square miles, in the south-east of the Punjab, and is in the political charge of the Commissioner of the Ambala Division. The original ancestor of the Pataudi Nawab was an Afghan, named Shaikh Pir Mat, who came to India in the time of the Emperor Akbar. A descendant of his, Faiz Talab, took service with the Marhattas, but afterwards transferred his allegiance to Shah Alam, Emperor of Delhi, and was employed by Lord Lake against Holkar. He distinguished himself as a brave and loyal soldier and was granted the Pataudi Ilaga in jagir by Lord Lake in 1806. His son, Nawab Muhammad Akbar Ali, behaved loyally during the Mutiny. The late Nawab Muhammad Ibrahim Ali Khan, who was born in 1887, was educated at the Aitchison College and installed by the Commissioner on 16th October 1913. He died of pneumonia at Delhi on the 28th November 1917.

Pataudi ranks seventeenth in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab. The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

Nawab Muhammad Itlikhar Ali Khan, the present Chief, is a boy of 8 years of age. During the minority the State is being administered by a Council of two members.

Mir Sadiq Husain, son of Mir Talab Husain; holds a jagir dating from the time of Akbar the Great, when 500 bighas were granted to Sayyid Sipahdar Ali Khan and Tahir Ali Khan as rewards for bravery. The Marhattas took away the jagir, but it was restored by General Perron and continued by Nawab Faiz Talab Khan Bahadur, founder of the Pataudi State.

(2) Lala Gulal Chand; retired Munsif and E. A. C., Punjab; resident of Delhi; Junior Member of Council, 5th February 1918.

SIRMUR (NAHAN) STATE.

Sirmur, or Nahan, ranks sixth among Native States in the Punjab, the rulers of Mandi and Sirmur being regarded as of equal rank. The ruling family claims descent from the Jaisalmir House in Rajputana and has been in possession of the State since 1095. The country was conquered by the Gurkhas in 1803, but on their expulsion by the British the State was granted to Fateh Prakash, the eldest son of the Ruling Chief, who was set aside on account of his profligacy and imbecility. Under a sanad, dated 21st September 1815, the British Government conferred on him and his heirs in perpetuity his ancient possessions with certain exceptions. The Chief is required in case of war to join the British troops with all his forces and also to make roads throughout his territory.

The political control of the State was transferred from the Superintendent, Simla Hill States, to the Commissioner of Delhi (now of Ambala) in 1896. The State furnished a contingent for service in Afghanistan.

The present Chief, Maharaja Sir Amar Prakash Bahadur, K.C.S.I., was born in 1808. He succeeded his father in 1911 and was made a K.C.S.I. on 3rd June 1915. A son and heir (Tika Rajendra Singh) was born to His Highness on 10th January 1913. On the outbreak of the war in 1914, the offer by the State of their Imperial Service Sappers was accepted. They did good work in Mesopotamia, but were unfortunately shut up with General Townshend's Forces in Kut, and only a small portion of the corps which was employed at the base at Basra escaped capture. The Chief was granted the title of Maharaja as an hereditary distinction and was also made an Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel on 1st January 1918, for services in connection with the war.

BAHAWALPUR AGENCY:

BAHAWALPUR STATE.

The Bahawalpur State lies to the south-west of the Punjab and to the north-east of Sind. It is bounded on the north by the Sutlej, on the west by the Indus and on the south by the States of Bikaner and Jaisalmer and the Province of Sind. Its length is about 300 miles, its mean breadth about 50 miles and its area about 15,000 square miles.

The dominant race in the State are the Daudputras, to which family the Chiefs belong. They claim descent from Abbas, uncle of the prophet, and emigrated via Khurasan into Sind. Bahawal Khan II, grandson of Sadiq Muhammad Khan, was the first Chief who succeeded in bringing the whole tribe under one authority. He gradually consolidated his power and even obtained possession of portions of Multan and neighbouring districts. In order to preserve his dominions from Maharaja Ranjit Singh, Bahawal Khan III entered into a treaty in 1833 with the British Government by which his independence was recognized. The Chief was granted the districts of Sabzalkot and Bhang Bara for services rendered to the army of occupation in Afghanistan in 1838, and his valuable assistance in connection with the Multan rebellion of 1848 was rewarded by the grant of a life pension of one lakh of rupees. Insurrections against the authority of the Chief broke out in 1863 and subsequent years, and in 1866 the management of the State was assumed by a representative of the British Government during the minority of Nawab Sadiq Muhammad Khan IV. Under British management the State was rapidly brought into a flourishing condition, and at the time of Sadiq Muhammad Khan's installation in 1879 the revenue had risen to twenty lakhs. Nawab Sadiq Muhammad Khan took an active share in the preparations for the 2nd Afghan War. He died in 1899. During the minority of his son, the administration of the State was carried on by Colonel L. J. H. Grey, C.S.I., who was Superintendent from February 1899 to April 1903.

In May 1903 the State was added to the Phulkian States Agency and in December 1913 it was removed therefrom and placed under the newly constituted Political Agency of Bahawalpur, Faridkot and Maler Kotla.

Bahawalpur ranks second in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab and the Nawab is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

The State is also owner of a few villages in the Amritsar and Lahore Districts. To these must be added the Maharaja's property in the United Provinces. This consists of the Bhogpur estate in the Bijnaur District and four estates in Oudh, namely, Baundi and Akauna in the Bahraich District, Bhitauli in Bara Banki, and Dhaurahra in Kheri. The latter was purchased by Raja Kharak Singh in 1871, but Baundi, Bhitauli and Akauna were presented to the State by the British Government in the time of Raja Randhir Singh, in recognition of his valuable services during the mutiny. The estates in Oudh extend over an area of more than 700 square miles, throughout which the Raja enjoys talukdari rights, with a population of about 300,000.

The Kapurthala Chiefs belong to the Ahluwalia family, the original ancestor of which was Sadhu Singh, who, about three hundred years ago, founded four villages in the vicinity of Lahore, which are still held in proprietary right by his representative. One of them, Ahlu, caused the family to be known by the name of Ahluwalia.

The real founder of the family was Sardar Jassa Singh, Kalal, a contemporary of Ahmad Shah, who by his intelligence and bravery made himself the leading Sikh of his day. During the Second Sikh War, Sardar Nihal Singh rendered valuable service and was created a Raja. During the mutiny Raja Randhir Singh, his son, took an active part in assisting the British Government. He was rewarded with a grant on istimrari terms of the two confiscated estates of Baundi and Bhitauli in Oudh, yielding a rental of Rs. 4,35,000, the amount of his tribute was reduced, and he was granted an adoption sanad and was made a K.C.S.I. The State furnished a contingent of 700 men which did good service during the last Afghan War, and its Imperial Service Troops took a creditable part in the operations in Tirah in 1897. MANDI STATE.

Mandi is the leading hill State of the Kangra Hills, in the political charge of the Commissioner of Jullundur. It is bounded on the west, north and east by Kangra and Kulu, and on the south by Suket and Bilaspur. The country is very mountainous, and is watered by the Beas River, which flows through from east to west and receives the drainage of the whole of the hill slopes. The valleys are fertile and produce all the ordinary grains, including rice, which is grown in large quantities. There are important salt mines at Guma and Dirang, yielding a large profit to the revenues of the State. Only a small force of irregular troops is maintained,

The Mandi Rajas are of ancient Rajput lineage, being Mandials of the Chandar Bansi tribe. The families of the Mandi and Suket Chiefs are sprung from a common progenitor, Suket being the senior branch. The ancestor of the present Mandi Chief separated from Suket early in the thirteenth century. The existing capital of Mandi was founded in 1527 by Ajbar Sen, who may be regarded as the first Raja of Mandi. From 1810 onwards Mandi was made to pay tribute to the Lahore Darbar. During the First Sikh War the sympathies of the Mandi Chief were with the British, and in 1846 Raja Balbir Sen of Mandi tendered his formal allegiance to the British Government and was granted a sanad recognising his Chiefship and defining his rights and obligations. His tribute was fixed at a lakh of rupees per annum. Mandi ranks sixth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab, the Chiefs of Mandi and Nahan being considered of equal rank. The Raja of Mandi is entitled to be received and visited by the Viceroy.

His Highness Raja Jogindar Sen, who was born on 19th August 1904, was selected, after the death of Raja Bhawani Sen, as successor to the Chiefship and installed as Raja by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor on the 28th April 1913. During his minority the State is being administered by an officer of the Punjab Commission, who is designated Superintendent of the State and is assisted by an Advisory Council. The young Chief is receiving his education in the Aitchison College, Lahore.

SUKET STATE.

The families of the Mandi and Suket Chiefs are sprung from a common progenitor, Suket being the senior branch. The ancestor of the Mandi Chief separated off early in the thirteenth century. In 1846 the Suket Chief, Raja Ugar Sen, turned against the Sikhs and joined with the Raja of Mandi in expelling the Khalsa garrisons from the strongholds in the hills. In return for these services he was awarded the rights of a Chief in his territories by the British Government. Raja Ugar Sen was succeeded in 1876 by his son, Rudra Sen, who was deposed three years afterwards for mis-government. He was succeeded by Raja Dusht Nikandan Sen, who died in May 1908 and was followed by his son, Raja Bhim Sen, the present Chief. The Suket State ranks fifteenth in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab and the Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

His Highness Raja Sir Bhim Sen, K.C.I.E., was born on 26th November 1885, was educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore, and succeeded on the death of his father, Raja Dusht Nikandan Sen. He was formally installed and invested with full ruling powers by the Lieutenant-Governor on the 28th October 1908. On the outbreak of the War in 1914 the Raja offered his own services and all the resources of his State to Government. LAHORE DIVISION.

CHAMBA STATE.

Chamba is a mountainous tract bounded on the west and north by Jammu and Kashmir and on the east and south by the Kangra District. Within its limits flow two of the five rivers of the Punjab, the Ravi and the Chandra-Bhaga, or Chenab. The area of the State is slightly over 3,200 square miles and the population, chiefly Rajput and Gaddi, was, according to the census of 1911, 135,873 souls.

The Chamba Rajas are Rajputs, connected by marriage at some time or other with most of the Chiefs of the Simla and Kangra Hills. They are said to have come originally from Marwara in Rajputana. Owing to its isolated position, the principality escaped to a great extent the rapacity of Maharaja Ranjit Singh. A portion of the Chamba State was made over by inadvertence to Maharaja Gulab Singh of Kashmir in 1840, but was recovered from him in the following year, and the whole conferred upon Raja Sri Singh, the rightful owner, and his male heirs in perpetuity by a sanad of 1848. The State is in the political charge of the Commissioner of Lahore, and ranks fourteenth in order of precedence amongst Native States in the Punjab. It now pays Rs. 2,225 annually as tribute to the British Government. The Chief is entitled to be received by the Viceroy.

Raja Sir Bhure Singh, K.C.S.I., K.C.I.E., the present Chief, who was born on the 17th December 1869, succeeded his brother, Raja Sham Singh, on the 23rd of January 1904, on the latter's abdication. He was formally installed by the Lieutenant-Governor on the 12th May 1904. For many years previously he had been associated with his brother in the management of the State which, indeed, since October 1902, had devolved entirely on him owing to the serious illness of the ex-Raja. The latter died suddenly on the 10th June 1905.

The Raja received the C.I.E in 1901, the K.O.S.I in January 1906 and the K.C.I.E on 1st January 1918. On the outbreak of the War in 1914 His Highness offered his own personal services and the resources of his State. The Raja has two sons, Tika Ram Singh and Duthain Kesri Singh. The former served in the Imperial Cadet Corps.

(1) Mian Anirudh Singh, Bijlwan, Rajput; head of the eldest branch of the Chamba royal family; permanently resident in the State and holding jagir lands; descended from an ancestor named Jit Singh, second son of Raja Ganesh Varma (1512—1559). Jit Singh had four sons, Bijl Singh, Ranpat Singh, Jagat Singh, and Bhupat Singh, each of whom founded a branch of the ruling family named after himself. Bijl Singh had two sons, Pahar Singh, the ancestor of Mian Anirudh Singh, and Malagar, the ancestor of Mian Govind Singh, all of whom bear the al or family surname of Bijlwan. From ancient times the jagirdars have formed the personal body-guard of the Ruling Chief and were under obligation to accompany him on his military expeditions.

(2) Jyotshi Chandar Mani, Brahman; Raja-Jyotshi, or Court Astrologer; descended from an ancestor named Prabakar, who was appointed Court Astrologer, probably by Raja Ganesh Varma (1512—1559), and this office has remained in the family ever since. Jyotshi Chandar Mani has held office since 1857.

(3) Mian Govind Singh, Bijlwan, Rajput; descended from Malagar, younger son of Bijl Singh and grandson of Raja Ganesh Varma through his second son, Jit Singh. The head of the elder branch of this family is Mian Anirudh Singh, Bijlwan, but both branches hold jagirs. Mian Govind Singh succeeded to the jagir after the death of Mian Moti Singh, Bijlwan, without issue, in 1908.

(4) Mian Govind Singh, Jindrotia, Rajput; a cadet of the royal line of Basohli, one of the extinct Hill States now included in Jammu territory. His ancestor was Keshab Pal, son of Raja Daulat Pal of that State (1500). The family surname is derived from the village of Jindrot in Basohli, which was the first seat of the family. The first member of the family to come to Chamba—was Surat Singh, great-grandfather of Mian Govind Singh, in the reign of Raja Raj Singh (1764—1794), and he fell with that Raja in the battle of Nerti, fighting against Sansar Chand of Kangra. Mian Autar Singh, grandfather of Mian Govind Singh, was Wazir of Chamba from 1873 to 1878. Mian Govind Singh holds the post of Superintendent of Shikar and of the Unreserved Forests in the State.

(5) Mian Hoshyar Singh, Bagawala, Rajput; claims descent from Shakat Singh, a younger son of Raja Prithvi Singh (1641—1664). The family name is explained by the fact that the original residence was in a garden near the palace. The family is a branch of the Chaubaria family, of which the parent stem is now extinct.

(6) Rana Jodhbhir Singh, Ulanisa; head of the oldest jagirdar family in the State. His ancestor is said to have come from Kulu along with Raja Mushan Varma (820), and to have assisted that Raja in his reconquest of the territory from the Kira invaders (vide Chamba Gazetteer, page 72) and for these and subsequent services he received a jagir at Ulanisa. Many members of his family have rendered military service in past times, and the head of the family in 1794 was killed at Nerti with Raja Raj Singh.

(7) Mian Kartar Singh, Chambial, Rajput; son of Mian Sohan Singh; represents a younger branch of the ruling family. His great grandfather Zorawar Singh, younger brother of Raja Charat Singh (1808—14), was for many years Raja of Bhadrawah State, then subject to Chamba, and died in Jammu in 1846. His son, Prakim Singh, was then appointed Raja of Bhadrawah, but in 1846 the territory was annexed by Maharaja Gulab Singh of Jammu. Mian Prakim Singh thereafter resided in Chamba and was followed by his son, Mian Sohan Singh.

(8) Rana Lal Chand Triloknath, Rajput; head of the principal Rana family in the State. The name of the founder of the family is unknown, but his descendants have held a considerable portion of the Chandra-bhaga valley in Lahaul from time immemorial. The family tradition is that their ancestor came from Jammu and first settled in Tundah near the sources of the Ravi, afterwards crossing the Pangri Range to Triloknath, before the idol of that name was set up. Rana Lal Chand holds a large jagir including the greater part of Chamba Lahaul, and also lands at Shor and Purthi in Pangri. One of his ancestors was named Hamir Bardhain and his deeds are sung in the local dialect. He is said to have defeated a Kulu Raja who came to carry off the idol of Triloknath and was afterwards invited to a feast and murdered, having laid aside his armour for the occasion. The Rana acts as Manager of the Triloknath shrine and appoints the residing lama or Buddhist priest. He also takes the leading part at the yearly mela on the last day of Sawan. His elder son is addressed as "Tika."

(9) Pandit Narsingh Dayal, Brahman; Raja Guru or spiritual preceptor to the Court; traces his descent from an ancestor named Suranand, who came from Benares and was appointed to the office of Raja Guru by Raja Ganesh Varma (1512—1559), and this office has been hereditary in the family ever since; has held the office since his father's death in 1902.

(10) Captain Sri Kanth, Baratru, Rathi; head of the Baratru family, which has a long and illustrious history; descended from an ancestor named Jatar, who came to Chamba from Baratar in Nurpur (hence the family name); in addition to extensive jagirs holds landed property in the State; sent to Bakloh to be trained, 1886; on his return appointed Officer Commanding, State Forces, in 1887, a post which he has held ever since.

(1) Dr. Chatur Bhu]; educated at the Lahore Medical College; Court Physician, 1884; also Superintendent of the Jail, Military Doctor and Superintendent of the State

Officials.

(3) Babu Gurditta Mal, Khatri ; descendant of the Sethi family which came to Chamba from Sialkot nearly 100 years ago ; muafidar and landowner ; Postmaster-General, 1895 ; in charge of transport arrangements in the State in addition.

THE PHULKIAN STATES.

The ruling families of the Phulkian States are descended from Phul, their eponym, from whom are also descended the great feudal, but not ruling, families of Bhadaur and Malaud, and many others of less importance. Collaterally the descendants of Phul are connected with the rulers of Faridkot, the extinct Kaithal family and the feudatories of Arnauli, Jhumba, Siddhuwal and, north of the Sutlej, Atari. These numerous branches of a vigorous stock belong to the great Siddhu-Barar tribe, the most powerful Jat tribe south of the Sutlej, and claim descent from Jaisal, a Bhatti Rajput, who, having founded the State of Jaisalmer in 1180, was driven from his kingdom by a rebellion and settled near Hissar. Hembel, his son, sacked that town and overran the country up to Delhi, but was repulsed by Shams-ud-din Altamsh. Subsequently, however, in 1212 that ruler made him Governor of the Sirsa and Bhatinda country. But his great-grandson Mangal-rao, having rebelled against the Muhammadan sovereign of Delhi, was beheaded at Jaisalmer. His grandson sank to Jat status by contracting a marriage with a woman of that tribe, and though the great Siddhu-Barar tribe in the ensuing centuries spread itself far and wide over the Malwa country up to and even beyond the Sutlej, the descendants of Khiwa fell into poverty and obscurity, until one of them, Sanghar, with a few followers entered the service of the Emperor Babar. Sanghar himself fell at Panipat in 1526, but the Emperor rewarded his devotion by granting his son Baryam the chaudhriyat or superintendency of the waste country south-west of Delhi, and thus restored the fortunes of the family. This grant was confirmed by Humayun, but Baryam in 1560 fell fighting against the Muhammadan Bhattis. Baryam was succeeded as chaudhri by his son Mahraj and his grandson Mohan, who were both engaged in constant warfare with the Bhattis until Mohan was compelled to flee to Hansi and Hissar, whence he returned with a considerable force of his tribesmen, defeated the Bhattis at Bedowal, and at the advice of the Sikh Guru Har Govind founded Maharaj in the Ferozepore District. But the unceasing contest with the Bhattis was soon renewed and Mohan and his son, Rup Ohand, were killed by them in a skirmish about 1618. His second son, Kala, succeeded to the chaudhriyat and became the guardian of Phul and Sandali, the sons of Rup Ohand. Phul was blessed by the Guru Har Govind, and from him many noble houses trace their descent. He left six sons, of whom Tiloka was the eldest, and from him are descended the families of Jind and Nabha. From Rama, the second son, sprang the greatest of the Phulkian houses, that of Patiala. The four other sons only succeeded to a small share of their father's possessions.

JIND.

The founder of the Jind State was Gajpat Singh, a great-grandson of Phul. He took part in the Sikh coalition of 1763 against the Afghan Governor of Sirhind and received a large tract of country as his share of the spoil. One of his daughters became the mother of Maharaja Ranjit Singh. In 1772 the title of Raja was conferred upon him by the Emperor Shah Alam. Raja Gajpat Singh's son, Bhag Singh, assisted Lord Lake in his operations against the Marhattas and was rewarded by the grant of the pargana of Bawana and the Gohana estates. In 1834 the Jind Chief died without issue. Sarup Singh of Bazidpur, a second cousin of the deceased Raja, succeeded to the gaddi by order of the British Government, but he was held to be entitled to succeed only to the territory possessed by his great-grandfather, Raja Gajpat Singh, and estates yielding Rs. 1,82,000 revenue were resumed by the British Government as escheats. Raja Sarup Singh's conduct during the first Sikh War was on the whole satisfactory, and he received in reward a grant of land. When the Mutiny broke out in 1857, Sarup Singh was not behind the Maharaja of Patiala in active loyalty, and his services on that occasion were of a most valuable nature. He was the only Chief who was present with the army before Delhi. In recognition of his services the Dadri territory, 575 square miles in extent, was made over to him and also thirteen villages close to Sangrur, the whole being assessed at Rs. 1,38,000; his salute was raised to 13 guns, and other privileges were conferred upon him. In 1863 he was created a G.C.S.I. His son, Raja Raghubir Singh, was a worthy successor: he died in 1887. Jind ranks third in order of precedence among Native States in the Punjab.

Lieutenant-Colonel His Highness Maharaja Sir Ranbir Singh, Rajendra Bahadur, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., was born on the 11th

The title of Maharaja was conferred upon him as an hereditary distinction at the Delhi Darbar in December 1911. Shortly after the outbreak of the war in 1914 the Jind Imperial Service Infantry proceeded to the front. They rendered excellent service in the East African campaign, from which they returned in January 1918, and gained several decorations. On the 1st January 1918, in recognition of war services, the permanent salute of the State was raised to 13 guns and His Highness' personal salute to 15 guns. He also received the title of Rajendra Bahadur as an hereditary distinction and the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in the army.

NABHA.

The real founder of the Nabha State was Hamir Singh, a grandson of Phul's grandson, Gurditta. He joined with his Sikh brethren in the capture of Sirhind and received as his reward the pargana of Amloh. He added many villages to the possession inherited from his grandfather, Gurditta, founded the present town of Nabha, struck coins in his own name, and exercised all the powers of an independent ruler for some years before his death in 1783. Nabha, with the other cis-Sutlej States, was taken under British protection in 1809. Raja Jaswant Singh, who was then on the gaddi, was succeeded in 1840 by his son Devindar Singh. After the first Sikh War Devindar Singh was deposed and one-fourth of the Nabha State was confiscated. For services rendered during the Mutiny, however, by Bharpur Singh, the successor of Devindar Singh, lands yielding a lakh of rupees of revenue were made over to the Nabha State and certain privileges conferred upon its Chief. Raja Bharpur Singh was offered a seat in the Legislative Council of the Government of India in 1863. Raja Hira Singh succeeded to the gaddi when Bhagwan Singh died without issue in 1871. He was a member of the Badrukhan family and was second cousin to the grandfather of the present Raja of Jind. He gave repeated proofs of his desire to contribute to the power and prestige of the Empire and proved himself an energetic and able ruler. The State furnished a contingent which did excellent service on the frontier during the Afghan War of 1879-80 and its Imperial Service troops were also employed on the Tirah and Buner Expeditions of 1897. The State also offered aid in operations on the Frontier in 1908 against the Mohmand and Zaka Khel tribes. His salute was raised to 13 guns as a personal distinction in 1877 and to 15 guns in 1898. The dignity of a Grand Commander of the Star of India was conferred upon him in 1870, and the title of Raja-i-Rajagan in 1893 in recognition of the excellent administration of his State. He was invested with the Insignia of a Grand Commander of the Order of the Indian Empire at Delhi in January 1903 and was also at the same time appointed Honorary Colonel of the 14th (King George's Own) Ferozepore Sikhs. He was invited to the Imperial Coronation Darbar held at Delhi in December 1911 and was present at Delhi, but owing to illness, which ended in his death on the 25th December 1911, was unable to do more than attend his private reception by His Imperial Majesty the King-Emperor. The title of Maharaja was conferred upon him as an hereditary distinction on the day of the Darbar. Nabha ranks fourth among Native States in the Punjab. The Chief of Jind is given precedence of Nabha on public occasions. But to this rule there is one exception. A return visit by the Viceroy is paid to Nabha before the return visit to Jind.

The present Chief, His Highness Maharaja Ripudaman Singh, Malvendra Bahadur, was born in 1883. He succeeded on the death of his father Colonel Sir Hira Singh, in December 1911, and was formally installed as Chief by the Political Agent in a Darbar held at Nabha on the 20th December 1912. On the outbreak of the war in 1914 the Maharaja offered his Imperial Service Troops. As they were reported not fit for active service, it was not found possible to accept the offer. Later on acceptance was withheld for a time for political reasons. The Maharaja's offers of pecuniary assistance, etc., also were refused on political grounds. In 1917-18 all the previous offers as well as a further offer of Rs. 2,25,000 for the construction six aeroplanes for the defence of London were accepted.

PATIALA.

Patiala is the largest of the three Phulkian States. The Patiala family descended from the second of the sons of Phul, has been established as a ruling power south of the Sutlej since 1753, when the present capital was founded by Sardar Ala Singh, a grandson of Phul. Raja Amar Singh, grandson of Ala Singh, made Patiala the most powerful State between the Jumna and the Sutlej, but after his death the administration fell into disorder, and in 1812 it was necessary for the British Government to interfere authoritatively in Patiala affairs. Raja Sahib Singh, who succeeded Amar Singh was almost an imbecile, but the State was wisely administered during part of his life-time and during the minority of his son by his wife, Rani As Kaur, a woman of great ability. For services rendered during the Gurkha War of 1814 Maharaja Karm Singh was awarded portions of the Hill States of Keonthal and Baghat. At the time of the first Sikh War Narindar Singh was Maharaja. He helped the British Government very materially during the war and his assistance was acknowledged by the gift of a portion of the territory confiscated from Nabha. During the disturbances of 1857-58 no Chief in India showed greater loyalty or rendered more conspicuous services to the British Government than Narindar Singh. On this occasion territory bringing in two lakhs of rupees a year was made over to him, and many other privileges and concessions granted. Maharaja Narindar Singh was invested with the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India in 1861, and about the same time was made a Member of the Legislative Council of the Government of India. He was succeeded by his son Maharaja Mahindar Singh, in 1862, who ruled for fourteen years and was succeeded by Maharaja Rajendra Singh.

Patiala ranks first amongst Native States in the Punjab.

His Highness Maharaja Sir Bhupindar Singh, Mahindar Bahadur, G.C.I.E., G.B.E., was born on the 12th October 1891. He succeeded his father, Maharaja Sir Rajendra Singh, G.O.S.I., who died in November 1900. The administration during the minority of the present Chief was conducted by a Council of Regency. His Highness was educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore. He left the College in February 1908, and on the 1st October of the following year his personal rule began. He was invested with the powers of a Ruling Chief by His Excellency Lord Minto on the 3rd November 1910. His Highness has a son, born on the 7th January 1913. He paid a visit to Europe during the year 1911 and was subsequently present at the Imperial Coronation Darbar held at Delhi in December 1911 when he received the G.O.I.E.

During the war the State Imperial Lancers and 8 companies of the Imperial Service Lancers were utilised in Egypt. The Maharaja himself was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army on the 15th October 1914 on the occasion of his proceeding from India on active service with the Indian Expeditionary Force. Owing to illness he was obliged, however, to return from Aden. On the 1st January 1918 His Highness was granted a personal salute of 19 guns and was also appointed a G.B.E. for his war services.

The Maharaja continues to contribute generously in men and money. In response to the Premier's message to India at the beginning of 1918 His Highness offered to raise three new battalions for the Army. During the same year the Maharaja went to Europe, was appointed Major-General, and attended the Imperial War Conference as a representative of the Indian States. His Highness was also appointed Honorary Colonel of the 15th Ludhiana Sikhs. He was invested by the King of the Belgians with the Grand Cross of the Order of Leopold. After the conference the Maharaja visited France and Palestine. The President of the French Republic conferred on His Highness the dignity of Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour, the King of Italy the Order of the Crown of Italy, and the Sultan of Egypt the Grand Cordon of the Order of the Nile.

(1) The Bhadaur Sardars.—The Sardars of Bhadaur are descended from Duna, brother of Ala Singh, the founder of the Ruling Family of the Patiala State.

Leading men.

Bhadaur was the original home of the Phulkian family, and Duna continued to live there after Ala Singh set out to seek his fortune in 1718. The latter founded a dwelling place for himself at Barnala, whence, after the destruction of Sirhind, he removed to Patiala, making it his capital.

Duna held the office of Chaudhri, and he had to collect the Imperial revenues of his district, and account for them to the Muhammadan Governor. Having failed in this duty on one occasion, he and one of his sons were seized and thrown into prison at Lahore. They there suffered such hardships that the son succumbed, while Duna died shortly after his release. This was in 1726. His grandson, Chuhar Singh, was the most celebrated of all the Bhadauris. He lived in the time of the weak-minded Sahib Singh of Patiala, and took advantage of the confusion into which affairs had fallen to seize ninety villages, including the district of Barnala; but he had to surrender most of his acquisitions later on. He also freely helped himself to the lands of Maler Kotla, and was in a fair way to become one of the leading Sikh Chiefs, when treachery put an end to his career. Chuhar Singh's sons, Bir Singh and Dip Singh, were alive when the British Power felt its way up to the south bank of the Sutlej. They at first admitted Patiala to be their head, and identified themselves with the interests of that State; but perceiving the advantages attaching to independence, they afterwards claimed the privilege of dealing direct with our Government. This was objected to by Patiala, upon grounds which need not here be detailed. The matter was under dispute for many years, and was not finally set at rest until 1858, when the Maharaja's supremacy was recognised as an act of grace and as a reward for loyal services rendered in the years of the Mutiny. All the rights of the Paramount Power were then yielded to Patiala, including reversion in lapsed estates, and the annual commutation tax of Rs. 5,265 hitherto taken by the British Government.

The following genealogical tree shows the connection with the Patiala family :—

SIMLA HILL STATES.

The Simla Hill States are nineteen in number, with nine petty tributaries. They are all in the political charge of the Deputy Commissioner, Simla, as Superintendent, Hill States. Some of these Rajput States have existed for more than a thousand years. They were apparently too insignificant to arouse the jealousy or attract the avarice of the Delhi Emperors; and they had the wisdom, while fighting freely among themselves, to avoid giving offence to their all-powerful Muhammadan neighbours. At the beginning of the nineteenth century, however, they were invaded by the Gurkhas, called in by one of their number to strengthen himself against a brother Chief in Kangra. The Gurkhas were driven out by the British in 1815 and the Hill Chiefs who had co-operated with their deliverers in the struggle were confirmed in their possessions under British suzerainty.

BAGHAL.

Baghal lies to the north-west of Simla. Its capital is Arki. The ruling family are Puar Rajputs. After the expulsion of the Gurkhas the Chief was confirmed in possession of his territory by a sanad granted in September 1815, under condition of rendering service in time of war. Raja Kishan Singh, grandson of the present Raja, evinced great loyalty on the outbreak of the Mutiny. For the services rendered by him on this occasion he was granted the title of Raja. Baghal ranks fifth among the Simla Hill States in order of precedence. The settlement which began in 1906 was completed in 1908. A land revenue assessment of Rs. 69,500 has been approved by Government.

Raja Bikram Singh was born in 1892 and succeeded his father, the late Raja Dhian Singh, in 1904. He attended the Aitchison College, Lahore, from 1905 to 1908. The administration of the State pending the investiture of the Raja with full powers is being carried on by a Manager. Tika Surendar Singh, born on 14th March 1909, is the heir-apparent. Of the three younger brothers of the Raja, Kanwar Bachittar Singh is working in the State as a Munsif and Magistrate and Kanwars Mohan Singh and Surat Singh are still being educated.

BAGHAT.

Baghat lies a few miles south-west of Simla and extends from Solon to Subathu and Kasauli. The house of Baghat, a Rajput family, came originally from Dera Nagri in the Deccan, and acquired the State by conquest. The family name, once Pal, is now Singh. The ruling house has experienced many vicissitudes of fortune. Being an ally of the Bilaspur Raja, Rana Mohindar Singh remained in possession of his territory under the Gurkha rule. He remained loyal to his friends during the Gurkha War, and lost five parganas in consequence, which were made over to Patiala. The remaining three lapsed to the British on the death, in 1839, of Mohindar Singh without issue. In 1842 Lord Ellenborough restored the State to Bije Singh, brother of Mohindar Singh, but in 1849 he died heirless and the State was again escheated. Umed Singh, the Rana's cousin, set up a claim, sent a Vakil to England and employed Mr. Isaac Butt to plead before the Court of Directors. In 1860 Lord Canning recommended the admission of Umed Singh's claim and it was recognised in the following year. But Umed Singh, after 13 years of waiting, only survived the good news a few hours. His son, Dalip Singh, was installed as Rana at the age of two. Baghat ranks sixth among Simla Hill States.

Rana Durga Singh, a Hindu Rajput, born in 1901, succeeded his father, Rana Dalip Singh, C.I.E., on 30th December 1911. He was formally installed on 23rd May 1913 as Rana and during his minority the administration of the State is being conducted by the late Rana's younger brother, Kanwar Amar Singh. The Rana was married to the sister of the Raja of Tehri Garhwal on 28th November 1917. On the outbreak of the war he offered the services of the State to the British Government.

Kanwar Amar Singh; Minister in the time of his brother, the late Rana; has been acting as Manager since his death; is also a Jagirdar of the State.

BALSAN.

Balsan lies about 30 miles east of Simla across the Giri, a tributary of the Jumna. The country is fertile and beautifully wooded with forests of deodar. The Rana is a Rajput and traces his descent from the same family as the Maharaja of Sirmur. The State of Balsan was acquired by conquest and previous to the Gurkha invasion of 1805 was a feudatory of Sirmur. On the expulsion of the Gurkhas the Thakurai of Balsan was granted to Thakur Jograj Singh by a sanad, dated 21st September 1815. Jograj Singh lived to the ripe old age of 87. He behaved with conspicuous loyalty in the Mutiny, was created a Rana for his services and was rewarded in open Darbar with a valuable khillat. He was succeeded by Bhup Singh, who died in 1884. Balsan ranks eleventh in order of precedence amongst Simla Hill States.

The present Chief, Rana Bir Singh, is the grandson of Rana Bhup Singh whom he succeeded in 1884. Rana Bir Singh was installed on the 2nd April 1883. He had a son and heir born on the 18th July 1915. The son died on 23rd July 1916, and the heir-apparent is the Rana's brother Mian Attar Singh.

BASHAHR.

The Rulers of the State are Rajputs and claim descent from Sri Krishna. The present Ruler traces his ancestry back for one hundred and twenty generations. From 1803—1815 Bashahr was in the power of the Gurkhas, but in 1815 they were expelled by the British Government, who granted a sanad to Raja Mohindar Singh, confirming him in all his possessions except Rawin, which was transferred to Keonthal to whom it originally belonged, and Kotguru which was retained as a British possession. The country, though the largest in extent of all the Simla Hill States, is sparsely populated and the people are poor. Kaneti and Delath are tributaries of this State. Bashahr ranks second in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States and ninth among Native States in the Punjab.

Raja Padam Singh, adopted son of the late Raja Shamsher Singh, was born in 1873 and succeeded on August 5th, 1914. He was installed by the Superintendent, Hill States, at Rampur, on November 13th, 1914. An officer of the Punjab Commission had been appointed Manager in 1911 and this form of administration was continued, Raja Padam Singh being given only limited powers at first. The Manager was, however, eventually withdrawn at the end of November 1917. Tika Devindar Singh, b. 1905, is the heir-apparent and is being educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore.

The Chief.

(1) Mian Narayan Singh; jagirdar of Kakrola in the Nogli Valley; a direct descendant of Raja Udai Singh, an ancestor of the late Raja Shamsher Singh. The family is greatly respected in the State. Mian Narayan Singh has recently been given the powers of an Honorary Magistrate.

Leading men.

(2) Thakur Balbir Singh.—The Karangla family is popularly supposed to be the senior branch of the Kumharsain, Kot Khai and Kaneti families. On the original partition of the house, the eldest branch settled at Karangla in Bashahr and ruled there for a number of generations. In the time of Raja Kahri Singh, the Thakurs were made tributary to Bashahr. Thakur Gopal Singh was driven from the ancestral seat at the beginning of last century and lived at Koti, in the Rampur Tahsil. His son, Hukm Singh, was banished from the State and lived for some years in Keonthal. Eventually the British Government restored a portion of the family jagirs, which are still held by Balbir Singh, the present head of the family. The Karangla Thakurs undoubtedly exercised independent sway in former times over a considerable portion of the Rampur Tahsil. Their original home is given as Gya and hence the family is known as Gyaru. The interesting settlement of Brahmans at Datnagar is said to be descended from a Brahman who accompanied the early invaders.

(3) Thakur Gulab Singh of Bharoli.—This family is connected with the former rulers of Sairi. The usual account is that Mul Chand—the ancestor of the Sairi house—was the son of a Brahman, the mother being the Rani of a Sirmur Raja. A more probable explanation is that the Sairi rulers were a sartora or cadet branch of the Sirmur Rajas, who, at one time, held a considerable portion of the Rohru Tahsil. The family appears to have been independent until the time of Sham Chand, when Bashahr assumed suzerainty. Sham Chand had two sons, Gokal and Sup Ram. Gokal was the elder, but the people would not recognise him and he was given a jagir in Bharoli whilst Sup Ram continued to rule in Sairi as a tributary of Bashahr. As usual, the latter State gradually assumed full powers and as the Sairi branch is now extinct the only jagir held by the family is enjoyed by the Bharoli branch.

(4) Thakur Madan Singh; belongs to the Tikri family, petty Thakurs who at one time ruled over the territory at the head of the Pabar Valley. They give Garhwal as their original home and claim relationship with the Garhwal rulers, which, however, does not appear to be admitted by the latter. From Garhwal they assert that they first went to Kamru, in the Baspa Valley. Kamru is the ancient seat of the Bashahr family, and the Tikri Thakurs can only have lived there as dependents of the Bashahr Rajas. The latter appear to have driven them out and they then crossed the central chain of the Himalayas to the Pabar Valley. This did not then form part of the Bashahr State, so the Thakurs were able to set up an independent kingdom, over which they ruled until Bashahr advancing from the south and west—not from Kamru—reduced them to submission and gradually absorbed their territories.

(5) Negi Dharm Sain of Powari, in the Chini Tahsil; head of the Powari family. In the time of Tikkam Das the family partially split up, Tikkam Das himself settling at Phunja in the Rampur Tahsil. The head of this branch is Negi Lachmi Shankar Das, now a Naib Tahsildar in the State. Dharm Sain has so far no heir, and the branches seem likely to become reunited in the person of Lachmi Shankar Das.

(6) Shama Nand is the head of the Kuhal family, and is a Naib Tahsildar in the State.

BHAJJI.

Bhajji lies on the left bank of the Sutlej, due north of Simla. The founder of the house came from Kangra and acquired possession of the State by conquest. When the Gurkhas overran the country between 1803 and 1815 and were expelled by the British Government, the Rana of Bhajji, Rudar Pal, was confirmed in possession of the State by a sanad under the usual conditions of rendering service in time of war. Bhajji ranks ninth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States.

Rana Birpal; born on the 19th April 1906; succeeded his father, Rana Durga Singh, on the 9th May 1913. He is being educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore. The administration of the State is in the hands of a Council of four members. The Rana was formally installed on the gaddi on the 22nd February 1918.

(4) Lala Salig Ram ; fourth member of the Council ; came from the Kangra District some 20 years ago, and has since been serving the State in various capacities.

BIJA.

The present Chief, Thakur Puran Chand, born in 1896, is the son of Thakur Udai Chand whom he succeeded in 1905, being formally installed by the Superintendent, Hill States, Simla, on the 22nd January 1918. He has a son born on the 21st March 1916.

BILASPUR.

Bilaspur, the capital of the State, is situated on the left bank of the Sutlej, about 30 miles above Rupar. The Rajas of Bilaspur claim descent from the Rajput rulers of Chanderi in Gwalior. Harihar Chand came on a pilgrimage many centuries ago to Jwalamukhi, a sacred place near Kangra, and was slain in battle against the Kangra Chief. One of his sons took possession of Chamba ; another carved out a principality for himself in Kumaon ; while a third, Bir Chand, founded the State of Bilaspur. Ajit Chand, twelfth in descent from Bir Chand, conquered Nalagarh and gave it to his brother, Suchet Chand, from whom the present ruling family of Hindur is descended. Nine years previous to the Gurkha invasion most of the Cis-Sutlej Kahlur lands had passed into the possession of Raja Ram Saran of Hindur. The Gurkhas expelled the conquerors and restored Kahlur to the rightful owner, Raja Maha Chand. He refused to co-operate with the British against the Gurkhas, but was eventually allowed to retain possession of his territories, and a sanad was granted to him in 1815 confirming him in possession of them under the obligation of supplying troops and transport in time of war and making good roads throughout his State. He was succeeded by his son who died childless in 1836, and the State was given to Jagat Chand, a collateral. A rebellion resulted, which was only put down by the advance of British troops. For services rendered during the Mutiny, Raja Hira Chand was given a salute of 7 guns, subsequently increased to 11. Bilaspur ranks first in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States and eighth among Native States of the Punjab.

Raja Sir Bije Chand, K.C.I.E., C.S.I. ; succeeded his father, Raja Amar Chand, in 1889, being then about 16 years of age. During his minority the State was under a Council of Regency. He was invested with full powers in 1893. His administration was at first satisfactory but after some years deteriorated. Affairs reached a climax in 1901-02 and eventually the Raja was deprived of his powers as a Ruling Chief and the administration of the State was placed in the hands of a Manager appointed by Government. In May 1908, however, the Raja who had been living at Benares was permitted to return to his State under certain prescribed conditions. He received the O.S.I. at the Imperial Coronation Durbar at Delhi in December 1911. He was created a K.O.I.E. on 4th June 1917 in recognition of his services in connection with the war and on 6th August 1918 was appointed an Honorary Captain and attached to the 41st Dogras. Tika Anand Chand, born on the 26th January 1913, is the heir-apparent.

The Raja has recently, with the approval of Government, abolished the Council which assisted him in the administration of his State, and has appointed Mr. Hardayal Singh as his Wazir.

The jagirs in this State are seldom held by individuals, but represent grants made as much as 150 years ago by various Leading men. Rajas to support their youngersons. As might be expected the individual holdings in many cases have become very minute. The jagirdars are known by the name of the Raja who made the grant, for example, the Amir Chandia Mians are descended from Raja Amir Chand (1692—1738). Three of their joint jagirs situated at Bargaon, Raghunathpur and Rampur are worth, respectively, about Rs. 2,500, Rs. 6,500 and Rs. 4,000.

Mian Sahib Singh and Sohan Singh; step-son and step-brother of the Raja; hold jagirs of the value of Rs. 4,500 and Rs. 3,500.

(1) Mr. Hardayal Singh, B.A., LL.B; formerly Vice-President of the State Council; now Wazir.
Officials.

(2) Rawat Gusaun Mal; Superintendent of Police in the State since his retirement from British service as Deputy Inspector 11 years ago.

(3) Mian Tulsi Singh; a Rajput of the Hoshiarpur District; has been Revenue officer in the State since 1907.

DARKOTI.

The late Chief, Rana Ramsaran Singh, was born in 1849. He was the son of Rana Ram Singh whom he succeeded on 15th October 1883. He died on 24th September 1918. His son, Tika Raghunath Singh, born in 1888, has not yet been installed.

DHADI.

The Chief is a tributary of Jubbal. The present Chief, Thakur Dharm Singh, is the son of Thakur Bir Singh and was installed on 16th October 1905. He has a son, born on 19th August 1905

DELATH.

Delath, a tributary of Bashahr, is a very small State on the border of Bashahr and the Kotgarh tract of British territory. The origin of the Delath family is traced by them to the same family as the Kaneti and Karangla families. The Delath family claim that their original home was Baroda, and that their name Gyarua is a corruption of Gaekwar and has no connection with Gaya. They further state that the Datnagar Brahmans are descended from one of the brothers who became a Brahman. This version gives six brothers, Karangla, Kaneti, Kumharsain, Kot Khai, Delath and the Datnagar Brahman.

Thakur Narendra Singh was born in 1854 and succeeded to the gaddi on 4th December 1884. The heir to the gaddi is the Tika Sahib Devi Singh, who himself has a son, Sher Singh, born in 1900.
The Chief.

DHAMI.

The house is Rajput. The Rana's ancestor fled from Rajpura near Patiala and settled at Dhami when Muhammand of Ghor invaded India in the 12th century. The State was originally a feudatory of Bilaspur, but was made independent by the British by a sanad, dated 4th September 1815. This sanad was granted to Rana Gobardhan Singh, a boy of 12, who at that age fought under General Ochterlony against the Gurkhas. His loyal services during the Mutiny were acknowledged by a remission of half of the State tribute of Rs. 720 for his lifetime. His son, Fateh Singh, succeeded in 1867 and in 1880 he also received a remission of half his annual tribute. Fateh Singh died in 1894. The settlement of the State was completed in 1916-17. Dhami ranks twelfth in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States.

Rana Hira Singh, born on the 5th August 1876, succeeded on the 2nd June 1894. He was made a C.I.E. on the 1st May 1918. The heir-apparent is Tika Dalip Singh, born on the 6th November 1908.

GHUND.

The State is a tributary of Keonthal. Thakur Ranjit Singh, Chief of Ghund, is the son of Thakur Kishan Singh, whom he succeeded in 1907. He was born in 1892. He has a son, born on 25th August 1911.

JUBBAL.

The Jubbāl State lies east of Simla between Sirmur and Rampur Bashahr. The Jubbāl Rana is a Rajput and claims descent from the original ruling family of Sirmur which preceded the present dynasty. The tradition is that the old Sirmur Raja presented one of his wives, as a religious act, to a Brahman of local renown. In the Brahman's house were born of this lady three sons, who founded the Hill Chiefships of Jubbāl, Rawin and Sairi. The Jubbāl State was originally a tributary of Sirmur, but after the Gurkha War it was made independent and in 1815 Rana Puran Chand was granted a sanad. He proved a bad ruler and was required to abdicate in 1832, receiving a maintenance allowance of Rs. 4,400 per annum. He afterwards applied to be restored to his possessions and this was sanctioned in 1840; but he died before effect could be given to the orders passed in his favour. His son, Karam Chand, was appointed Rana in 1854. Jubbāl ranks seventh in order of precedence amongst the Simla Hill States. The Chief is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during His Excellency's term of office.

Raja Bhagat Chand; born in 1888; is the half-brother of the late Rana Gyan Chand, and succeeded as Rana on the latter's death in April 1910. Tika Digbijaya Chand, born on the 5th April 1913, is the heir-apparent. The title of Raja was conferred on the Chief of Jubbāl as an hereditary distinction on 1st January 1918.

The only two jagirdars of importance are Kanwar Ishwari Singh, younger brother of the Raja, who left the Aitchison College, Lahore, in 1913, and Mahant Dwarka Das, Chela of Mahant Ratan Das of the shrine of Sri Gul on the Chor mountain.

Munshi Hari Singh, Settlement Naib Tahsildar, succeeded Mian Sher Singh as Wazir of the State in July 1917.

KEONTHAL.

Subordinate to the Raja of Keonthal are the five petty States of Koti, Theog, Madhan, Ghund and Ratesh, each paying a small annual tribute, though in many respects practically independent.

The State has been held by the present ruling family for many generations. The family is Rajput and the family suffix is Sen. They suffered by the Gurkha invasion early in last century in common with other Hill Chiefs. Sansar Sen, great-grandfather of the present Raja, was born in exile at Suket, where his father took refuge, but was brought back by the British in 1814. As the Keonthal Chief refused to pay a contribution towards the expenses of the war, and had given no assistance to General Ochterlony in men or supplies, a portion of his territories was taken away and made over to Patiala.

In 1830 the present station of Simla was formed by the acquisition of portions of Keonthal and Patiala. Twelve villages of the former State assessed at Rs. 937 were taken in exchange for the Pargana of Rawin, yielding annually

Rs. 1,289, which had been retained as likely to be of use strategically. Rana Sansar Sen behaved loyally in the Mutiny, and the title of Raja was conferred upon him. He was succeeded in 1862 by his son, Mahendra Sen, who died in 1882. The late Chief, Raja Bijē Sen, grandson of the latter, was installed in 1901.

The Keonthal family is connected by marriage with the Dhami Rana, the Raja of Khairagadh in Oudh and the Raja of Sirnūr.

Keonthal ranks fourth among the Simla Hill States and twelfth among Native States in the Punjab. The Raja is entitled to be received by His Excellency the Viceroy.

Raja Hamendar Sen ; born on the 21st January 1905 ; succeeded his father, the late Raja Bijē Sen, on the latter's death in February 1916. Raja Hamendar Sen is being educated at the Aitchison College, Lahore. During his minority the administration is being carried on by a Manager appointed by Government. Two daughters of the late Raja Bijē Sen were married in February 1916 to His Highness the Raja of Tehri-Garhwal, and the youngest daughter to the Tika of Vizianagram.

The Kaneti State is entirely independent of Bashahr, save for the payment of an annual tribute of Rs. 900. The Kaneti family is supposed to represent the descendants of one of four brothers, the other three brothers having founded the Karangla, Kumharsain and Kot Khai families. Kaneti became tributary to Bashahr in the time of Raja Mohindar Singh.

The State is a tributary of Keonthal. The present Chief, Raja Raghubir Chand, was born in 1865. He is the son of Rana Bishan Chand and was installed on 10th July 1891. He has a son, born on 22nd April 1898.

KUMHARSAIN.

The Kumharsain territory lies on the left bank of the Sutlej, immediately below Kotguru and north of Narkanda. The founder of this dynasty, Kirat Singh, came from Gaya about 1000 A. D. and acquired the State by conquest. This State was formerly a tributary of Bashahr but after the Gurkha War a sanad of independence was granted to Rana Kahar Singh in 1816, with the condition attached of rendering feudal service to the paramount power. On his death in 1839 leaving no direct heirs, his estates lapsed to the British Government but were restored to a collateral, Pritam Singh. This Chief behaved loyally in the First Sikh War, crossing the Sutlej at the head of 300 men and laying successful siege to the Kulu Fort of Srigarh. Pritam Singh died in 1858 and was succeeded by Rana Bhāwani Singh who ruled for 16 years and was in his turn succeeded by Rana Hira Singh on the 12th November 1874. The Thakurais of Balsan, Bharauli and Madhan were at one time feudatory to Kumharsain but were made independent by General Ochterlony in 1815. Kumharsain ranks eighth among the Simla Hill States.

Rana Vidyadhar Singh ; born in 1895 ; succeeded on the death of his father, Rana Hira Singh, in August 1914. MAILOG.

The State lies about thirty miles south-west of Simla, at the foot of the Kasauli hill, between Nalagarh and Kuthar. The ruling house is Rajput. The founder of the family came from Ajudhya and settled at Bhowana. After vicissitudes of fortune, the Thakur settled at Pata, which has been the capital of the State for 21 generations. The State was held by the Gurkhas from 1803 to 1815, and on their expulsion by the British a sanad, dated 4th September 1815, confirmed the Thakur in the possession of his territory on the usual conditions of rendering service in time of war. Sansar Chand, to whom the sanad was granted, died in 1849 and was succeeded by Dalip Chand who died in 1880. He was succeeded by Thakur Raghunath Chand who was granted the title of Rana as a personal distinction. Mailog ranks tenth among the Simla Hill States. The Chief is not entitled to pay a formal visit to the Viceroy, but is allowed the privilege of an informal interview once during His Excellency's term of office.

The present Chief, Rana Tilok Singh, born in 1859, is the son of Rana Jit Singh whom he succeeded in 1892. He has a son, Tika Sheo Singh, born in 1888.

NALAGARH.

The State is bounded on the north by Bilaspur, on the south and west by the Ambala District and on the east by Baghal, Mailog and Patiala. Nalagarh, a thriving town, some miles north-east of Rupar, is the capital.

The Chiefs of Hindur and Kahlur trace their origin to a common ancestor, a Chandel Rajput from Garh Obanderi. Nalagarh was conquered by the Raja of Kahlur (Bilaspur) who bestowed it on his brother, Ajai Chand, from whom the present family is descended. Raja Ram Saran Singh greatly extended his possessions by conquest, but his power was broken and his country taken by the Gurkhas in 1803. When the Gurkhas were driven out by the British in 1815 Raja Ram Saran Singh, who had behaved with consistent loyalty to the British throughout the war, was granted a sanad which confirmed him in his possessions, but he refused to take over the districts which he himself had conquered and annexed before the Gurkha invasion. Nalagarh ranks third in order of precedence among the Simla Hill States and eleventh amongst Native States in the Punjab.

Raja Jogendra Singh, who was born in 1870, was recognised as Chief on the death of his brother, Raja Isri Singh, in September 1911. The Council of Regency was abolished in December 1914 when Chaudhri Ramji Lal, Naib-Tahsildar, was appointed Wazir and the Raja was permitted to exercise the powers of a Ruling Chief subject, till the extinction of the State debt, to the control of the Superintendent, Hill States.

The four chief jagirdars in the State are Mians Bhagwan Singh and Udham Singh, representatives of the sartora Leading men. families of previous Rajas, and Mians Rode Singh and Shyam Singh who are relatives of the present Raja. All these hold jointly with the other members of their families.

WESTERN TIBET.

The country known as Western Tibet practically coincides with the administrative province of Narsi Khorsum, situated at the extreme west of Tibet and bounded on the north by the Kuenlun mountains, on the west by Ladakh, Spiti and Bashahr, and on the south by Tehri-Garhwal, Almora and Nepal. On the east there is no fixed boundary: the province ends somewhere near the 82nd parallel of longitude, at the limits of the basins of the Sutlej and the Indus. Within these boundaries is included an area of nearly 60,000 square miles. The southern and western portions lie in the Sutlej basin, the middle portion in the Indus basin, while in the north is the great lake district of Rudok and Changthan, the latter a barren uninhabited waste whose altitude is, on the average, over 16,000 feet. The province is administered by two Garpons acting together, laymen appointed from Lhasa for a term of years and exercising almost complete powers within the province except in the districts attached to the monasteries of Tooling, Tashigong and Darchan. Their head-quarters are at Gargunsa, a village in the valley of Gartanchu; but from the end of July to the end of October they live at Garyarsa or Gartok, some 34 miles upstream.

The province of Narsi Khorsum is composed of a number of districts, generally administered by Jongpons (district officers) or Ponbos. Seven of these districts lie in the Sutlej basin. Chaprang occupies the south-west corner of the province and is governed by a Jongpon appointed from Lhasa, who usually resides at Shangtsi, with a deputy at Chaprang. Bashahri and Garhwali traders visit this district, which is of little commercial importance. The Daba Jong, the smallest district in Western Tibet, lies east of Chaprang, while that of Purang-Taklakot is situated on the Almora border and is thus on the highway between the United Provinces and the great wool country lying to the east of the Manasarowar lake. The district of Barka is administered by a Tarjum, or stage officer, who is also the Chief Magistrate of Gyanima. The importance of his charge is derived from the trade mart at Gyanima. In this same basin lies the monastery of Tooling, whose Khanpo, or abbot, is perhaps the most important personage in Western Tibet. He ranks with the senior Garpon and acknowledges only the supreme power at Lhasa. A Khanpo is appointed every three years from among the residents of Lhasa or its neighbourhood, and the post has been described as the archbishopric of Western Tibet. The Dashok of Darchan administers a small territory near Mount Kailas and several important monasteries. To the north of Chaprang is the small district of Chhumurti, in which the executive authority is exercised by a Ponbo, who holds office by inheritance.

In the Indus valley there are five districts. That of the Garpons consists of small scattered tracts in the valley of the Indus and Gartanchu and includes Gartok and Gargunsa, Langmer, where there is a borax mine, and Demchok. The Tashigong District contains the monastery of that name and is administered by an abbot, a native of Western Tibet, who is independent of the Garpons but subordinate to the Khanpo of Tooling. Namru, a small area in the Gartanchu valley, is under the authority of an hereditary Ponbo, who holds in jagir the villages of Namru, Marla, Yarsa Jai and Tiyak. The Chocho District, also under a Ponbo, comprises the whole valley of the Langchu from its source to the Indus, while the Bongba District, the largest of the areas administered by hereditary Ponbos, is said to include the basin of the Indus from its source to Giamchu.

In the northern lake district lie the districts of Rudok and Rundor and the goldfields. Rudok is the largest of the districts of Western Tibet and is governed by a Jongpon, who is a Lama appointed from Lhasa. The district is visited annually by Ladakhi, Lahauli and Bashahri traders, who are not infrequently subjected to unauthorised taxation. Rundor, a small area inside the boundaries of Rudok, has only within the last 40 or 50 years been inhabited, and is administered by a Deba or Ponbo. A Serpon, appointed from Lhasa, superintends the goldfields, which lie in the Rudok District.

The only other official of importance is the Zarang Ruphan, who is the Chief Militia Officer of Western Tibet. The office is hereditary.

British Trade Agency, Western Tibet.—The British Trade Agent is Rai Sahib Devi Das, an inhabitant of Kotgarh in the Simla District, formerly a clerk in the Simla District office and afterwards a Naib-Tahsildar in the Chini Taksil, Bashahr State. Devi Das was appointed Trade Agent on 4th December 1911 and received the title of Rai Sahib on 1st January 1915.

The Trade Agent resides in the winter at Poo, in the Bashahr State, on the borders of Western Tibet, and in the summer months tours throughout Western Tibet, visiting all the trade marts and safeguarding the interests of traders from India. Small grievances are often disposed of on the spot by the Agent's influence with the local officials, while more serious matters are brought to the notice of Government. The relations of the present Agent with the Tibetan officials and people are cordial, and the traders' interests appear to be adequately protected.
